Celebrating the Blues in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia

March 2019

Volume 13, Issue 3

Mark your calendars and get your advance tickets to see the Selwyn Birchwood Band perform for the DC Blues Society on St. Patrick's Day, Sunday, March 17! Don't miss this chance to see one of the top young stars on today's blues scene!

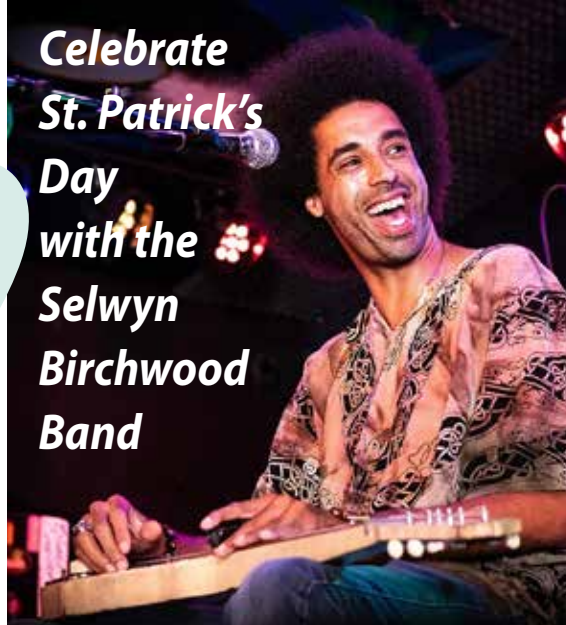

Veteran DCBS members know that we were way ahead of everyone in recognizing Birchwood's rising talent, and DCBS has hosted him three times—once at the DC Blues Festival and twice in Silver Spring—shortly after he won the 2013 International Blues Challenge and the Albert King Guitarist Of The Year Award. We are very happy to host this now-established blues star.

Alligator Records President Bruce Iglauer calls Birchwood, "A killer guitarist, switching between a regular six-string and lap steel. Live, he's a ball of energy, interacting with the audience like they were in his living room."

Birchwood's high-octane blues—at once deeply rooted, funky and up-to-the-minute—are played with passion and honest emotion. His band feeds off his exuberance, while the striking 6'3" young man with his trademark Afro roams the stage (often barefoot), ripping out memorable guitar licks with ease, his soulful, rocks-and-gravel vocals firing up the crowd. With his warm, magnetic personality, Birchwood is as down-to-earth as his music is fun, and thought-provoking.

Since his 2014 debut album, Don't Call No Ambulance, the Selwyn Birchwood Band has been touring non-stop. Selwyn's latest album is Pick Your Poison with his longtime band — saxophonist Regi Oliver, bassist Huff Wright and drummer Courtney "Big Love" Girlie. LIVING BLUES says, "Selwyn Birchwood is a master storyteller—both lyrically and musically.... He is graced with a depth and maturity that would be impressive in a grizzled veteran, let alone a fresh-faced young man."

Bring your dancin' shoes and celebrate a "bluesy" St. Patrick's Day at American Legion Post 41 in Silver Spring, MD with the Selwyn Birchwood Band. Doors open at 5 pm; local favorite Clarence "The Blues Man" Turner gets the night started at 6 pm; and Selwyn and his Band start at 7 pm. Tickets are available at www.DCBlues.org. As always, DCBS members receive discounted ticket prices. For more info, see page 8.

City Winery, DCBS Announce Partnership

by Pete Salsbury

The DC Blues Society is happy to announce a new partnership with the City Winery DC. Since opening in spring 2018, the multi-purpose concert venue, urban winery, restaurant and special event space has brought in an impressive roster of artists to perform in the music rooms. Located at 1350 Okie St., NE, the City Winery is in a sprawling 40,000-square foot space in Ivy City.

"Music is essential to the City Winery experience," says Michael Dorf, City Winery founder and CEO. "We are adding new, world-class artists to the lineup all the time." City Winery has featured nationally and internationally acclaimed talent performing a variety of musical styles, and many have already found homes at other City Winery locations in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Nashville and Boston.

DC Concertgoers will enjoy a space that combines the rustic appeal of wine country with modern amenities. The second and third floors have two music rooms, each seating about 300 and featuring an excellent sound system and menu. The City Winery's huge building includes a wine garden and

by Pete Salsbury

Women's History Month is a month-long celebration of women's contributions to society and history that is observed during March. One entertaining way to celebrate Women's History Month is to check out women musicians who have made history or are now making some new history in the blues.

This article highlights some of the greatest stars and some upcoming woman who are working to make history.

Koko Taylor, 1928–2009, at left, was an American blues musician, popularly known as the "Queen of the Blues." She was known primarily for her rough and powerful vocals and traditional blues stylings. While signed with Chess Records, Taylor's single, "Wang Dang Doodle," became a major hit. Touring in the 1960s and 1970s increased her fan base, and as she became accessible to a larger record-buying public, she came to dominate the ranks of female blues singers. Taylor won 24 W.C. Handy Awards, more than any other artist, and was a major influence on such musicians as Bonnie Raitt, Shemekia Copeland, Janis Joplin and Susan Tedeschi.

Etta James, 1938–2012, was a gospel prodigy. A Los Angeles native, James' career began to soar by 1960, due to songs like "I'd Rather Go Blind" and "At Last." Despite continued battles with drugs, James toured and performed throughout her life, sharing her suggestive stage antics and sassy attitude. She was inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame in 1993 and won the 2003 Grammy Award for Best Contemporary Blues Album for Let's Roll. James continues to be considered one of the most dynamic singers in music.

Shemekia Copeland, daughter of blues guitarist and singer Johnny Copeland, has earned outstanding reviews for her soaring vocals and down-to-earth stage presence. Since her 1998 debut album,

Turn the Heat Up!, her music has continued to grow. Her wide-open vision of contemporary Americana roots and soul music showcases the evolution of a passionate artist with an up-to-the-minute musical and lyrical approach. Copeland and her most recent album, America's Child, are nominated for several Blues Music Awards.

Samantha Fish has been burning up the blues scene with her rich roots sounds since her debut album in 2009. She has been going nonstop since, releasing six studio albums, with two in 2017 alone! Now 29, Fish is a gifted guitarist and singer/songwriter. Her ever-changing, genre-bending repertoire graces us with blues rock, Mississippi Hill Country blues, jazz, soul and rock 'n roll.

Ana Popovic, above, is a Serbian-born, music-loving, super blues shredder who can give most current blues guitarists a run for their money. She made her breakout US debut in 2000 when she appeared on a Jimi Hendrix tribute album along with Taj Mahal, Eric Gales, and many other outstanding blues artists. With insane riffs and a whole lotta soul, Ana Popovic is one of the leading ladies in the blues.

Susan Tedeschi has been active in the music scene since 1995, opening for musicians such as B.B. King and Buddy Guy. In 2010, Tedeschi and her husband, prodigy blues-slide player Derek Trucks, joined blues forces in The Tedeschi Trucks Band. The guitarist, singer, and songwriter is part of the new generation of blues musicians looking for ways to keep the form exciting, vital, and evolving. Her live shows are by no means straight-ahead, urban blues. Instead, she freely mixes classic R&B, blues and her own gospel and blues-flavored originals into her sets. The band has been one of the most prominent and successful bands in the blues jam scene. Be sure to catch a live show!

Ruthie Foster has a welcoming and pleasant acoustic blues-and-folksy style, mixed with gospel undertones. A Navy veteran, Foster sang with the Navy band Pride and gained a love for performing. Drawing from Aretha Franklin and Mavis Staples, Foster has developed a unique sound, unable to be contained within a single genre.

Since gaining widespread recognition in the mid-2000s, she has won and been nominated for various blues accolades including the 2019 Koko Taylor Award for Traditional Blues Female Artist. Her latest album is Joy Comes Back, featuring 10 tracks from writers as diverse as Mississippi John Hurt and Black Sabbath.

Larkin Poe has been helping to keep the blues thriving with their roots-infused take on the genre since 2010. The band, fronted by sisters Megan and Rebecca Lovell, have released three albums and five EPs, and have toured the globe playing headline shows and festivals. With their near-perfect guitar and vocal harmonies, the Georgia natives are some of the toughest blues players in the business. It's safe to say the future of the blues is in good hands.

Heather Newman began singing as a youngster and, at age 10, joined the Omaha Blues Society's Blues Ed youth artists program. She honed her skills and put together The Heather Newman Band which released Burn Me Alive in 2017. Her pixish appearance belies a raw and powerful voice and polished stage presence. Newman was the winner of two 2018 Blues Blast Awards and Burn Me Alive is nominated for 2019 Blues Music Award for Best Emerging Artist Album.

Vanessa Collier is a trailblazing master musician and multi-instrumentalist who weaves funk, soul, rock and blues into her performances. Terms like "fiery," "passionate," "commanding," "killer stuff" and "head-turning" are used to describe Collier's searing saxophone and vocals. Since graduating from Berklee College of Music in 2013, Collier has released three albums; toured nationally and internationally, including two years with Joe Louis Walker; and accumulated numerous awards and nominations. Her 2018 album, Honey Up, spent weeks at the top of the charts. Collier is nominated for two Blues Music Awards for Best Contemporary Blues Female Artist and Best Horn Instrumentalist.

Celebrate Women's History listening to some great music by these incredible artists.

DCBS Raises Funds for HART Fund

The DCBS February jam was designated as a special HART Event to support The Blues Foundation's HART Fund. The Handy Artist Relief Fund helps to ensure the health and well-being of blues artists across the genre.

Through donations and proceeds from the 50-50 raffle, DCBS raised $205 for the HART Fund. The photos here show some of the generous donors. The Day of HART event will become an annual event at the February jam.

Congratulations to these DCBS members who won free tickets to the Frozen Harbor Music Festival's show on Feb. 23, featuring Shemekia Copeland and the Kelly Bell Band.

The Blues Are All Right on the Legendary Cruise

by Pete Salsbury

When Theodis Ealey sang, “Hey, Hey, the Blues Are All Right!” and 1,000 people on the deck answered with cheers, dancing and high fives to anyone nearby, I knew this was a great start for a blues cruise.

I was with fellow DC Blues Society members Carol Salsbury, and Pat and Ken Bransford, and 2,000 other music-lovers who sailed out of San Diego on Legendary Rhythm and Blues Cruise #31. We made stops in Cabo San Lucas, Loreto and La Paz in the Baja California Peninsula on the west coast of Mexico. On board were more than 25 bands, each scheduled to play four times during the week of Oct. 28–Nov. 4. This article is from my notes that I wrote during the week.

One “problem” I had on the Blues Cruise was deciding whom to see and what show to attend. It’s a challenge with music going on in five different areas on the ship. I walked 4-6 miles each day going to different music venues and stopping off at the restaurant and buffet several times each day.

The first of many highlights was an incredible tribute to Aretha Franklin organized by the California Honeydrops and Taj Mahal’s daughters, Deva and Zoe, with special appearances by Mindi Abair, Booker T. Jones, Ruthie Foster and others.

I enjoyed again seeing the Selwyn Birchwood Band. The barefoot, Afro’d guitarist didn’t disappoint! The DCBS hosted Birchwood for a few shows after he won the 2013 International Blues Challenge, and we’re eagerly anticipating his performance on Sunday, March 17.

Southern Avenue was a new hot band that I wanted to see. They feature a very energetic, charismatic singer, Tierinii Jackson on vocals, her sister Tikyra on drums, and Ori Naftaly on guitar. Tierinni doesn’t stop moving, shaking and dancing, despite wearing high heels on stage. The crowd went wild every time they played.

Day 3 started with a stop in beautiful Cabo San Lucas. We rode in a small boat and got up close to the amazing mountains and arches, saw thousands of colorful fish swimming in the crystal clear water and sea lions sunbathing on rocks. We were dropped off on the beach next to the stage where Selwyn Birchwood was playing.

The late night pro jams are legendary, and my favorite was led by Tab Benoit. The highlight was a long set with 13 players on stage, “conducted” by Tab. I left at 3:30 am and heard they played until 7am when they smelled bacon.

It’s not all music, Day 6 started with a panel discussion on “redefining the blues” with Selwyn Birchwood Mike Zito, Tierinii and Ori from Southern Avenue, and others talking about early influences and creating new music in a blues-related style.

Other fun features are the autograph and meet-and-greet sessions. I talked to all of my favorites including Taj Mahal, Tommy Castro, Mike Zito, Booker T., Ruthie Foster, Selwyn, G. Love, Los Lobos and Southern Avenue.

It’s a treat to see the legendary Booker T. Jones and his Stax Revue playing classic songs. He is such a humble man, telling stories about playing with his “friends,” the MGs, Aretha Franklin, Otis Redding, Albert King, Sam and Dave, and others.

A band that won me over was G. Love & Special Sauce. They play a unique mix of blues and folk and turn it into their own "hip hop blues." You've got to see and hear it to understand.

For more information about upcoming cruises, see www.bluescruise.com

Post note

by Pat Bransford

My husband and I had the pleasure of being on the same cruise with Pete and his wife Carol. This was our first blues cruise, and we had a fantastic time. The LRBC is clearly one of the most fun things we have done, and it's no wonder that people keep signing up for additional cruises after their first experience. The Holland American Cruise Line was great, and all the cruisers and musicians were terrific. Another great aspect of the Legendary Rhythm & Blues Cruise is that so many different styles of blues music are highlighted. It's an education!

This particular cruise also had the distinction of being held the week of Halloween and All Saints Day and All Souls Day (in Mexico, it's the Day of the Dead (Día de los Muertos). Some of the cruisers and musicians were fully engaged in costume-optional theme nights. If you see any photos or videos online of Cruise #31, you'll probably see some of the great costumes.
